What may feel like a poor sermon may be given life by the Spirit in ways that we cannot imagine. What matters most is that we are entrusting ourselves in our preaching to the One who is the Word. The final chapters are a few of Barbara Brown Taylor's sermons. I will summarize what I learned from those sermons for the art of preaching.

The Preaching Life by Barbara Brown Taylor

Barbara Brown Taylor tells an engaging story of the birth of her own voice as a preacher, the struggles to bring the gospel to speech, and the joys of being an instrument of God's will. -- William H. Willmon It is easy for those of us who preach to slip into thinking of preaching as a task, a chore, even a weekly homework assignment. . . .
